

jewellery was a last-minute thought guilt drove the decision to wear a lightweight, cheap wire given as grudging gift from a huffing unmade bridesmaid not the only thing fake about the marriage it would come to symbolise the eroding of the self living to appease others the less than perfect outward show

Jo Beth Gray