

dislike
frustration annoyance at her inability to draw what she'd hoped to see holding the offensive piece down pressing white onto the graphite rubbing until the heat comes the pressure purging the paper but the paper is never the same the marks are still evident the pain is not erased by the intensity of her desire to begin again

Jo Beth Gray