

just below the surface was a bomb it was a safe, simple existence to everyone else they didn't know what she knew her life was like walking on eggshells she was scared that one day the pressure would... make her snap

time was running out
she had to act fast

her mental health was at stake this was a marriage of war and rejection in her heart she knew she had to escape but she was weak from struggling

time was running out

then it exploded
her life had ended

Jo Beth Gray